Architectural elevation drawing of a residential development. The drawing shows a row of buildings along a road. From left to right, the buildings are:

- A large, light-colored building labeled "RECREATION HALL" with a chimney.
- A red vertical line.
- A two-story house with a gabled roof, labeled "BRETHES WOODLAND".
- A two-story house with a gabled roof, labeled "BRETHES WOODLAND".
- A row of five small, dark-colored houses with gabled roofs.
- A two-story house with a gabled roof, labeled "BRETHES WOODLAND".
- A two-story house with a gabled roof.
- A two-story house with a gabled roof.

The background features a line of trees and a cloudy sky.

This architectural rendering shows a proposed development consisting of a long, continuous row of multi-story buildings with a mix of brick and light-colored siding. To the right of this main row is a larger, more prominent building with a steep gabled roof, labeled "RECREATION HALL". The entire development is set against a backdrop of a densely wooded hillside. A red dashed line is visible in the background, possibly indicating a property boundary or a specific design feature.
